STUDENT CRITIQUE

Sections IV and V

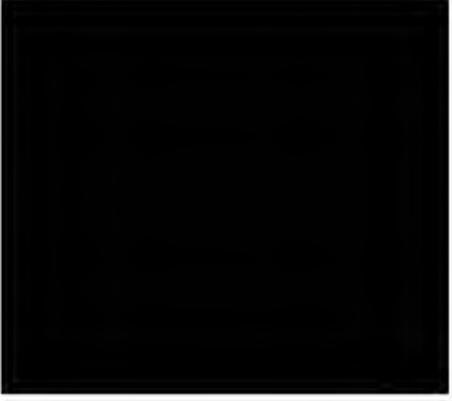

We try continually to reassess elements of CS training in terms of course objectives. Criticism from students has helped to identify what needs improving. Your candid replies are invited for that purpose.

NAME

1. Case Histories. Comment on the appropriateness of the cases used in the course relative to their value to illustrate major points. How useful was the classroom discussion of each case? Suggest cases which might be used in addition to or instead of each case.

6. Examination. Comment on the content, coverage, type of item, etc., for the final test.
7. Students sometimes have problems or complaints about the administrative aspects of the running of the course: promptness or lack of it in starting and ending class meetings, handling of attendance, problems with phone calls and communication with your office and outside, etc. Which problem or complaint of this type, if any, did you have?
8. To what extent was the material in this course a duplication of material covered in training courses which you have previously taken? Please identify the course you have in mind.
9. Comment on the time allotted to each section of the course. If too much or too little time was allotted please indicate how much time you think would be appropriate.
10. Please indicate whether you think all pertinent subjects have been covered in the course. What subjects would you add or delete?

11. Considering only your own personal experience and capabilities, how appropriate was the level of the course for you?

12. Comment on the practical value of the course to you.

13. Please add here any other comments you may wish to make about the course.
